

NEWS RELEASE
Hufcor Inc.
Janesville, WI USA
June 15, 2010

As part of a multi-generational strategic plan, Hufcor Inc, the world's leading producer of moveable walls and folding partitions, has reached an agreement to sell its high visibility property in Bellflower, CA which is our U.S. regional assembly and distribution operation.

In July of 2006, Hufcor took the first step in the process by introducing its versatile new series of products as part of a major product and process consolidation initiative. The project was designed to take the product offering to new levels to better serve the demands of the construction and design communities. Design for Six Sigma and LEAN manufacturing principles were implemented in the process to prepare the company for the increasing competitive price pressure and to optimize our future growth plans.

“The inevitable result of such a successful undertaking is that through efficiency, innovation, and automation, we have increased capacity and throughput, thus expanding our Janesville production and freeing up other assets. We are now prepared to convert those physical assets to work for us in the next steps in our long term strategic plan” said Hufcor President James Landherr.

“The timing of the transaction works well for us. Hufcor is prepared to efficiently serve the regional market out of the continent's largest most efficient automated Janesville plant. We wanted to be sure our customers would not be affected by this transaction. We have dialed in all elements of our vertical integration from supply chain, to manufacturing, to delivery on our customized fleet, down to installation and service, and we are ready. At the same time we are expanding our Mexico production capabilities to better serve Mexico and Latin America. The Hufcor California distributor office will be relocated in the Bellflower area to meet their growth plans as well”, Landherr added.

Hufcor's world headquarters, located in Janesville WI, has served as the company's main manufacturing and operations facility since the late 1970's when the company expanded into its current home from a smaller Janesville facility. Hufcor acquired the California property in the 1980's with the acquisition of Aircoustic Corporation.

Hufcor was founded in 1900 and is the world's leading manufacturer of operable, accordion and glass partitions. Hufcor combines innovative engineering and design concepts to offer our customers the broadest range, most technologically advanced, high quality partitions available.

Hufcor products are available worldwide and Hufcor maintains the most manufacturing facilities in the operable partition industry with plants in over 15 countries.
